The book “Legal Method, Reasoning and Research Methodology” (2014) jointly authored by Professor Dr. K.L. Bhatia and Professor Dr. S.C. Srivastava is a fascinating book on the subject and provides a foundation course for the beginners in legal education. The integrated course provides an enliven foundation of legal knowledge, fundamental concepts of law, fundamentals of Indian legal system, fundamentals of Indian common law, fundamentals of judicial process and contours of doctrinal as well as empirical research. The book aims at training niche law students with no knowledge of law to enabling them to have necessary conceptual framework to deal with the modules of different laws operating in the Indian legal system requiring a minimum legal knowledge. Legal method is a process of study of law and thinking about law and genesis of knowing law methodologically, scientifically and systematically both analytically as well as logically to arrive at logical conclusion. The book aims at training new entrants in legal studies to the art of communication skills. It aims at introducing law students in the beginning to the traditional foundations of legal reasoning with the help of theoretical as well as socio-legal/empirical/heuristic scholarship including critique approaches with an eagle eye. It exposes a beginner law student to a range of ideas about law espoused by a variety of scholars associated with different schools of legal thoughts in brevity inasmuch as an ocean within a tear. The book also provides a fascinating approach to the comprehension of integrating legal culture, human values and professional ethics.
